Beurer nebulisers provide relief during the cold and flu season

Ulm, 20 February 2025 – Respiratory diseases become a challenge for many people during the colder months of the year. Dry air, low temperatures and waves of cold viruses put strain on our airways and can cause irritation and discomfort. With its nebulisers, the Ulm-based health expert Beurer offers an effective solution to relieve respiratory discomfort and boost well-being.

The advanced nebulisers from Beurer enable optimum nebulisation of medication and efficient absorption of active ingredients. From respiratory problems caused by colds to chronic diseases such as asthma and bronchitis – inhalation therapy can provide the right support for all situations. The devices are easy to use and carry the tiny active particles deep into the upper and lower airways, where they can work effectively.

The small and lightweight IH 57 Nebuliser is ideal for use at home and on the move. Its innovative vibrating membrane technology ensures fast and effective inhalation together with ultra-quiet operation.

The compressed-air technology on the IH 28 Pro Nebuliser produces the finest particles, which transport the active ingredients deep into the lungs. Thanks to its easy-to-use, one-button operation, the IH 28 Pro is ideal for holistically treating the airways in adults and children.

Further information on inhalation therapy can be found in the Beurer Health Guide at Correct Inhalation – Inhalation for the Relief of Respiratory Diseases.
