Beurer offers a wide range of products for a healthy indoor climate

Ulm, 06 February 2025 – A healthy indoor climate is important for our well-being. However, it can be difficult to ensure the ideal humidity level, especially during the colder months of the year. Health specialist Beurer offers a wide range of products that help to achieve this goal.

If the air is too dry, it can irritate the eyes and mucous membranes. The LB 200 and LB 300 Plus Air Humidifiers are used to increase the air humidity in a controlled manner. Their natural cold evaporation technology provides powerful and hygienic humidification of the air.

When running in automatic mode, the device measures the humidity and automatically adjusts the power output to achieve the desired humidity level.

If, however, the air in the room is too humid, the new LE 150 and LE 250 Air Dehumidifiers are the perfect solution. The air dehumidifiers can prevent mould, condensation and musty odours. They also boast an integrated laundry drying function that sets the device to the maximum output to dry the laundry faster.

The HM 16 and HM 22 Thermo Hygrometers help you to keep an eye on the humidity and temperature in the room at all times.

With its combined portfolio of air humidifiers, air dehumidifiers and thermo hygrometers, Beurer offers a varied range of products for a healthy indoor climate that can help improve our overall well-being.
